

For immediate release (03.09.09)

Julia Kendrick Conway
Stella Cadente Olive Oil Co
707-961-6000
stellacadente@pacific.net
www.stellacadente.com

STELLA CADENTE PARTNERS WITH TONY'S FINE FOODS

Stella Cadente Olive Oil Company announced today that they have joined forces with Tony's Fine Foods of West Sacramento, California to bring Stella Cadente's award winning Northern California artisanal olive oils to selected grocery retailers in California, Nevada and southern Oregon.

"With the addition of Tony's as a distribution partner, we are taking the next steps in making our oils available to the traditional grocery customer," says Julia Kendrick Conway of Stella Cadente. Tony's Fine Foods services chain, regional and independent specialty and natural grocers with some of the best locally-produced food items in the region. Conway believes that their long history of quality and personal service is a distinct advantage over other, larger distribution companies, and is well suited to both the Stella Cadente product line and the marketplace.

Though recipients of numerous top awards, including the NASFT's 2008 sofi™ Gold for Outstanding Oil, Stella Cadente's story is about the farmers, since the work of their hands brings the goodness of the land to our tables. Stella Cadente uses only olives grown and processed in Northern California, supporting the tradition of the family farms that feed us all. The oils are produced the old-fashioned way, farmed locally and sustainably, hand picked, and crushed the same day they are harvested. Stella Cadente's oils are available from select retailers in the U. S. and Canada, and from our website at www.stellacadente.com.